Welcome to Faith United Methodist Church!

We are so glad that you have joined us this morning. For those new or returning to the church, welcome home. God calls us all to Himself, and it's our conviction – we're here to prove it – that spiritually, Christianity is most fully lived out in the congregation of God's people. You figured out we're not all together, but we're working on this journey of faith and we are glad you have come along with us for the ride.

For All the Saints

William Walsham How (1823-1897) was educated at Oxford and served through the ranks until elected Bishop. Early in his service as Bishop of Wakefield, he comforted the families of miners killed in a disaster, although later he failed to resolve a miners' strike. While serving in London, he ministered in the slums of the East Side for little pay and with no social prestige. He declined prestigious appointments as bishop and in London, his parishioners called him by various popular titles including the children's, the poor man's and the omnibus bishop, the latter for his frequent travel among the people of his parish. Writing his first hymn at age thirteen, he produced many of his hymns early in his career, while he was a rector at Whittington (1851-1853), a rural hamlet on the Welsh border. He wrote many of his hymns for people who had little education. Originally, "For all thy saints" [italics added] was written for All Saints' Day. The heading was "A Cloud of Witnesses," a reference to Hebrews 12:1. This hymn is a commentary on the article in the Apostles' Creed, "I believe in the Communion of Saints." Within the Anglican tradition, the relationship with the faithful on earth and the saints in heaven is paramount. This hymn emphasizes this union. It is noted that for many years this hymn was sung among Methodists only at memorial services during annual, jurisdictional, and general conferences. During and following World War II, memorial observances became much more common in Methodist life, and All Saints' Day gained a foothold among the key Sundays of the Christian Year.
